Parkinson’s Awareness Conference

Parkinson’s disease (PD) is the second most common neurodegenerative disease after Alzheimer’s disease, affecting about one million people in the United States. Every year, approximately 70,000 new cases are diagnosed and the prevalence of the disease is expected to increase substantially in the next 20 years. It is estimated that over 5,000 individuals are affected by Parkinson’s disease in the state of South Dakota alone. At present, there is no cure for Parkinson’s. Our mission at the South Dakota Parkinson Foundation remains resilient is working towards improving the quality of life for those affected by Parkinson’s disease.

April is Parkinson’s Awareness Month which offers the SD Parkinson Foundation an opportunity to increase the public’s understanding of the disease and to encourage support to local programs and services for individuals living with Parkinson’s, their carepartners and family members.

The SD Parkinson Foundation offers an array of resources to the Parkinson’s community including connecting individuals with fitness programs and support groups, as well as coordinating educational and fundraising events. We encourage all those affected by Parkinson’s, carepartners, family members and friends, along with healthcare professionals to attend this year’s SD Parkinson’s Awareness Conference on Saturday, April 13th at the Hilton Garden Inn, in Sioux Falls (south location). Topics presented at this year's conference include: Deep Brain Stimulation by Dr. Ridder with Avera Health, Coping with Changing Roles in Caregiving & Apathy with Struthers Parkinson’s Center, Elder Law, and Parkinson’s Myths & Accuracy just to name a few. An array of exhibitors from local and surrounding communities will also be available throughout the day to visit with attendees and talk about the programs and services they offer and answer any additional questions.

You can view the full SD Parkinson’s Awareness Conference agenda and read more about the upcoming event and how to register by visiting the SDPF website—www.southdakotaparkinson.org. We encourage you to join us for a day of education and inspiration!
Neuropsychiatric issues are common in Parkinson’s disease (PD) and include mood, cognitive, and behavioral symptoms that can occur at all stages of the disease. Examples of these disorders include depression, anxiety; mild cognitive impairment, dementia and psychosis.

Depression in PD is likely underdiagnosed and may manifest as milder forms of depression rather than a major depressive disorder. Some features of Parkinson disease depression may overlap with other symptoms of Parkinson’s disease such as slowness, blunted affect, gastrointestinal problems or loss of energy. The first choice for PD depression is selective serotonin reuptake inhibitors (SSRIs) which are frequently used since they are better tolerated than other antidepressant classes, such as tricyclic antidepressants (TCAs).

Anxiety is a common neuropsychiatric issue in PD, occurring in 20% to 50% of patients with PD and is likely-like depression undertreated. Some symptoms of anxiety can overlap with motor and nonmotor symptoms of PD, such as muscle tension, poor concentration, fatigue, sleep problems insomnia and autonomic dysfunction. To date, no controlled therapeutic trials have been conducted specifically for anxiety disorders in PD. Medications used to treat anxiety disorders in PD are SSRIs, SNRIs, benzodiazepines, and buspirone. Benzodiazepines should be given cautiously in elderly patients and those with cognitive impairment or poor balance.

Cognitive impairment is a frequent complication of PD, ranging from mild dysfunction to a marked dementia. Mild cognitive impairment in PD (PD-MCI) has been increasingly recognized as a distinct entity or potential precursor stage to dementia. PD dementia has been defined as a syndrome with an insidious onset and impairment in more than one cognitive domain that has a significant effect on activities of daily living. Patients with Parkinsonism who develop an early dementia (within 1 year of the motor symptoms) are diagnosed as having dementia with Lewy bodies. To date, only rivastigmine has been approved by the US Food and Drug Administration (FDA) for the treatment of PD dementia based on a randomized double-blind.

Neuropsychiatric issues in PD represent a growing area of focus in the multidisciplinary care of patients with PD at all stages of their disease. While increased recognition of neuropsychiatric symptoms exists, there remains a great need for patient, caregiver, and health care provider education. Further attention is needed for symptomatic treatment.

“Think & Speak” Providing Cognitive-Communication Stimulation

Candace Zweifel, MA, CCC-SLP, Sanford Health

According to the Medicare’s Minimum Data Set (MDS), it is estimated that 72% of those who reside in Long Term Care are dealing with some degree of cognitive-communication difficulty. This may be apparent with changes noted in remembering, problem solving, reasoning, attention, understanding what one hears or coming up with the correct word to say. At Sanford Vermillion Care Center, a new partnership with the University of South Dakota (USD) Communication Sciences and Disorders (CSD) department, Sanford Vermillion Speech Pathology Department and the Sanford Activities department is helping combat these difficulties by providing cognitively stimulating group activities.

“We know the positive effects cognitive exercise can have for residents with various medical diagnosis including dementia, stroke, and Parkinson's disease.” says Candace Zweifel, Speech-Language Pathologist at Sanford Vermillion, “This is a way to help support more opportunities for quality cognitive and language stimulation. It also helps improve and maintain quality of life for residents.”

Shelly Grinde, MA, CCC-SLP, a Clinical Instructor with USD CSD program brings 2 groups of 2 graduate Speech Pathology students to the Care Center twice a week for 45 minute group activities. The students plan and initiate group activities for all who are willing to attend with the goal of providing researched based cognitive and language stimulation. The “Think and Speak” groups began in January and have been well received by residents. Joan Patterson, a resident at the Care Center states, “The University students are always interesting and invite great conversation.” The group also helps to identify those who may be in need of direct skilled Speech Therapy services through the Sanford Vermillion Therapy Department. The Partnership with the University is also providing Graduate level students with hands on clinical experience working with the adult and geriatric population. They are learning about various medical diagnosis, experiencing various levels of abilities, and how to structure research based cognitive stimulation in the Long Term Care setting.

April marks Parkinson’s Awareness Month. One of the ways we want to bring more awareness to Parkinson’s disease is to share about those in our community making a difference. Becca Anderson is one of those special individuals. Becca recently held a Facebook fundraiser in honor of her dad, raising over $1,000 to support the SD Parkinson Foundation. When asked why she wanted to do this type of fundraiser she responded, “My dad has always been strong for us, his family. I’ve never seen him weaken - he only ever gets stronger. He has worked hard his entire life to provide a life in which we can all thrive and achieve any dream we can imagine. He has served as a mentor for countless people, provided leadership while serving in the Air National Guard, and has been delivering classic dad jokes since 1989!”

However, after Becca’s dad was diagnosed with Parkinson’s disease she felt the need to be strong for him. She wanted him to know that there was an entire army of supporters that would stand beside him during his journey. Becca claims her dad is a stubborn man and does not accept help easily (“he never really needs help because he’s an everyday version of Superman”) so she figured having a fundraiser in his name would not only show support for him, but also raise funds for people who are fighting similar battles. Basically, Becca wanted to help support all of the superheroes that just happen to have Parkinson’s.

The South Dakota Parkinson Foundation wants to thank Becca for all her efforts to support individuals and families touched by Parkinson’s disease. She is a true testament that you can definitely have an impact on others and in so many different ways...fundraising, raising awareness, being a support system, volunteering, and by sharing your story.

Becca has also continued her efforts to support those touched by Parkinson’s by joining the 2019 Step Big Walk planning committee. We are excited to have her involved with this event.
Petals for Parkinson’s

We see them everywhere and the SD Parkinson Foundation logo is based around one, but did you know that the tulip is actually the worldwide symbol of Parkinson’s disease? The red tulip has been associated with Parkinson’s awareness since 1980 when a Dutch horticulturalist that had Parkinson’s disease developed a red and white Parkinson.” The European Parkinson’s Disease Association (EPDA) used a stylized red tulip based on the "Dr. James Parkinson" tulip as its logo. In April 2005, the red tulip was launched as the Worldwide Symbol of Parkinson’s disease at the 9th World PD Day Conference in Luxembourg.

This stylized red tulip, with its distinctive leaves shaped like the letters “P” and “D”, was designed by early-onset Parkinson’s patient Karen Painter. Karen and her friend, Jean Burns, are behind the movement for it to become the nationally recognized symbol for Parkinson’s disease awareness. The PD Tulip has inspired a grassroots movement combining efforts and resources to help find a cure in our lifetimes (2017 Wilkins Parkinson’s Foundation).

April has been designated as Parkinson’s Awareness Month and throughout the month we have joined together to positively create a better understanding of Parkinson’s and how we can better assist those living with the disease, their carepartners and family members. In conjunction with Parkinson’s Awareness Month the SD Parkinson Foundation has entered its second year with the Petals for Parkinson’s fundraiser by partnering with Landscape Garden Centers in Sioux Falls, Beadle Floral & Landscaping in Aberdeen, and Oakridge Nursery in Brandon. Together we putting forth efforts in using the worldwide symbol (the tulip) as a way to raise awareness while spreading springtime cheer within our local and surrounding communities.

Preorders for potted tulip arrangements were completed during the months of January - March however; we will have additional arrangements available for purchase at our upcoming SD Parkinson’s Awareness Conference on April 13th. Each arrangement is $20 with proceeds going to support the SDPF for educational programs and services across the state.

For additional information please contact the SDPF office at 605.271.6113 or visit the SDPF website at www.southdakotaparkinson.org.

Director’s Message

Janey Case, Executive Director

April is here which means spring…finally! And despite the recent weather reports and their inconsistency I know I am definitely ready for more sunshine, green grass and trees, freshly planted fields and blooming flowers, especially tulips!

Spring also means a very busy time for the South Dakota Parkinson Foundation (SDPF). April marks Parkinson’s Awareness Month and during this time we focus our attention on raising awareness through education, experiences through new ways of effectively coping and living well with such conditions, and resources to help us gain insight into the complications of living with PD. The annual SD Parkinson’s Awareness Conference is the foundation’s largest educational event of the year and once again we are excited to welcome an amazing lineup of presenters that will cover a wide range of topics. This is also a time to come together as a community to show our continued support for those affected by Parkinson’s disease along with meeting new individuals and families. I hope you will consider joining us.

I also want to take this time to remind our members that SDPF is already into our fourth year as an independent foundation, separate from the National Parkinson Foundation (NPF). We’ve had great success with growth over the years and we have even bigger goals for 2019. Our hope is to work towards expanding some of our local programs into additional areas across the state including, but not limited to, educational programs and fundraisers similar to the Step Big Walk for Parkinson’s and Petal for Parkinson’s events.

With independence and continued growth come expenses. Over the years your contributions have helped make SDPF the leading SD Parkinson’s disease resource provider that it is and for that we say, thank you. However, as a foundation we no longer receive financial support generated at the national level and in order to meet the demands of this disease within our borders we are asking for your ongoing support in the upcoming year.

We are the connection to let families know they are not alone and we remain dedicated to our mission; to improve the quality of life for those touched by Parkinson’s disease.
Thank You to All Our Donors
January 1st – March 31st, 2019

Gifts to the South Dakota Parkinson Foundation support educational programs and services across the state. Thank you to all who support the SDPF mission by giving generously throughout the year.

At the time of the gift, the donor receives notification and SDPF sends a special acknowledgement letter to the family upon request. SDPF has made every effort to ensure accuracy of this information. If you notice an error or omission, please notify the office and corrections will be made.

Parkinson’s Awareness Month

April is Parkinson’s Awareness Month. What better time to make things happen in a bigger way. So how can you become involved? Challenge yourself to spend some time each day raising awareness for Parkinson’s disease. To show you just how easy it can be, we’ve created some tips to get you started. Once you decide to take action, you’ll be surprised by the difference you can make, so why not start today?

- Write a letter to the editor of your newspaper
- Share your personal story with a friend, neighbor, coworker, or family member.
- Spend some quality time with someone who has Parkinson’s.
- Send a letter to your local television or radio station in praise of a healthcare professional that made a significant difference in your life.
- Talk to your local fitness center or hospital facility about offering exercise classes
- Participate in a variety of exercise classes and invite a family member or friend
- Join a local Parkinson’s support group.
- Create art or find new ways to express your PD journey
- Share your story in an upcoming issue of the SDPF newsletter.
- Talk to family and friends about starting a team for the Step Big Walk
- Ask for help when you need it!

Great Bear Ski Valley Races

A special thank you to Grant DeHaan and Great Bear Ski Valley for organizing ski and snowboarding races with proceeds benefiting the SD Parkinson Foundation.

The event, held on Sunday, March 10th at Great Bear Ski Valley, was a huge success with $660 being donated to the SD Parkinson Foundation, dedicated to the memory of Grant’s father, Don DeHaan, who had Parkinson’s and passed away on April 6th, 2017. Before the races began Grant made a special tribute to his dad stating, “I never would have started skiing if it weren’t for my dad!”

The races included both skiing and snowboarding for all ages. Grant took 2nd place in his division for the ski races. It was a beautiful day with a large crowd that came out to enjoy a fun day of friendly competition.
Rock Steady Boxing Celebrates 2 Years!

At the end of April, Rock Steady Boxing at the Inn on Westport will be celebrating its 2nd Anniversary of helping people with Parkinson’s fight back. Coach & Program Director Lisa Howard has been very pleased with the great outcomes fighters are showing. “The program works” said Coach Lisa. “It’s been truly humbling and inspiring to work alongside these ‘athletes’ each day and see how hard they fight back and see the improvements they are seeing in their physical fitness.”

Rock Steady Boxing enables individuals with Parkinson’s to fight their disease by providing non-contact boxing style fitness program that improve their quality of life and sense of efficacy and self-worth. Recent studies also suggest that intense exercise programs may be “neuro-protective,” actually working to delay the progressions of symptoms. Rock Steady Boxing provides encouragement by inspiring maximum effort, speed, strength, balance and flexibility. Boxing works by moving your body in all planes of motion while continuously changing the routine as your progress through the workout. RSB classes have proven that anyone, at any level of Parkinson’s, can actually lessen their symptoms and lead to a healthier, happier life.

Every six months boxers are “reassessed” to see how they are progressing. “All our boxers have seen gains in one area if not all three.” said Coach Lisa. “From balance scores increasing, and boxers not falling, to faster walking speeds and improved leg strength – we’re seeing some amazing improvements. Several of our boxers have also been able to reduce their Parkinson’s medications as well.” she added.

The boxers express it best – when asked if doctors, friends or family members have commented on their progress they had this to say:

- “Many people said I am looking more like before I had PD. They say I look much livelier and smile more.” Barb Ashby, Boxer since summer of 2017.
- “My daughter says I’m probably in the best shape I’ve ever been.” Jayne Ott, Boxer since May 2018
- “My neurologist at my assessment said my reactions showed improvements. Family and friends have also commented that I seem better in my interactions.” Gillas Stern, Boxer since December 2017.
- “On a recent reunion cruise with my buddies, they said I looked much better and was even able to get around since our last gathering. They all thought I’d be in a wheelchair by now. They were impressed how I could climb and maneuver around the historical ruins of the Caribbean.” Monte, Boxer since June 2017
- “I like that there are new workouts every week, cheesy cheers and support from the coaches. A variety of equipment to help improve skills, laughter and the willingness of my coach to adjust my activities to match the levels makes RSB a game-changer” Barb Dowling, Boxer since October 2017

Besides the many wonderful physical improvements Rock Steady boxers see from the program, the social interaction and comradery is maybe the number one favorite part.

- “I love going to class – we have such a fun group. There are laughs and sharing of information. Our coach has a keen sense of humor and shows such compassion.” Molly Liberko, Boxer since November 2017
- “The social aspect is very important – my fellow boxers make me laugh. The comradery helps me know I’m not alone – and that helps so much.” Roger Van Maaanen, Boxer since June 2017
- “The social aspect is probably just as important as the physical part. It helps to know that most everyone has ups and downs at different times, and we can all relate to each other and what we’re feeling. It helps the motivation to keep going.” Greg Hemmingson, Boxer since, July 2018

Do you or someone you love have Parkinson’s? If so, start fighting back today – come watch a class and learn how Rock Steady Boxing can help you!

Who are you walking for?
Your Mom? Your Dad? Your Grandpa? Your Grandma?

Step Big Walk for Parkinson’s is a celebration of those we love that have Parkinson’s disease and those of us that take care of and support our loved ones. We spend the morning not only walking, but enjoying time with our family and friends. Enjoy a beautiful walk inside the Canaries field, live entertainment, a children’s area, yummy food, and so much more - all while raising money for an amazing cause.

All monies raised remains in the state of South Dakota providing support through:
* Advancing education, support, and outreach
* Free local resources for the community
* Raising awareness about the prevalence of Parkinson’s and the need for continued services

Step Big Walk for Parkinson's

Hello! My name is Riley Conklin, and I am the new event coordinator for the SD Parkinson Foundation. One of my main tasks is to bring you a fun and informative Step Big Walk for Parkinson’s event, which will be held on Saturday, August 24th at the SF Canaries Baseball Stadium. The doors will open at 8 AM, with the walk beginning at 9 AM (one hour earlier from last year).

Based on past participant feedback the main reason for moving the walk up one hour is the concern with weather temperatures as it can be very hot during this time of year. By moving the walk up one hour, you’ll be able to participate before the summer heat hits, all the while still being able to get educational information from a variety of different exhibitors.

This will be my fifth consecutive year being involved with the Step Big Walk. In past years, I’ve had a variety of different roles during the planning process and the walk itself. I’m excited to take over as event coordinator and oversee the walk for 2019. Keep an eye out for further information to come about the walk on the SDPF website, as well as our Facebook page (Step Big Walk for Parkinson’s). We’re very excited for another successful walk and we hope to see you and your team there!

Spring Cleaning for Seniors with the KonMari Method

Vintage road maps, mismatched teacups, shabby holiday decorations, an old 12-speed stand mixer ... your family may be planning a spring-cleaning marathon for your senior loved one, but where to begin? And what about your elder’s more sentimental collections of vinyl record albums, “Youth for Kennedy” campaign buttons, mint-condition periodicals and wedding china?

No worries. Japanese organizing consultant Marie Kondo, the decluttering phenomenon and mega-selling author of “The Life-Changing Magic of Tidying Up,” is eager to help you and your senior clear out the extras and bring joy to a fresh home makeover. The charming host of the wildly popular Netflix show, “Tidying Up with Marie Kondo,” welcomes viewers by saying, “Hello, I’m Marie Kondo. My mission is to spark joy in the world through cleaning ... I am so excited because I like tidying and I love mess.”

KonMari Method Basics

From the girl born in Tokyo who used to organize her siblings’ and friends’ rooms to the ruler of a multinational dynasty of neatness, Kondo turns jumbled homes into mindful spaces of inspiration and serenity. Kondo’s signature decluttering prescription, the KonMari Method (KonMari, a contraction of her Japanese name, Kondo Mariko), features six basic rules for tidying, which are summarized in the following organizing tips for seniors:

- Involve family members to participate in cleaning. Ease the challenge of parting with years of accumulated stuff by making the spring-cleaning session an upbeat event for the whole family. Invite siblings, grandchildren and active older friends to help out for a few hours each. It is important to keep the elderly loved one involved in the organizing process to provide useful information about what to keep, what to discard, and how to improve accessibility in the home. Kondo stresses that decluttering is a personal process and no one should toss another’s possessions without permission first.

- Tidy by category, not location. Kondo directs people to pull out everything from one category at a time and put everything from that category into a large pile. For example, bring all your senior's clothes from every closet, drawer and storage bin into the living room.

- Finish discarding items first. It may be tempting to dive in and shuffle possessions around to different storage areas, but Kondo advises to pare down the stockpile of items first before placing anything in storage boxes or back in closets or drawers. The KonMari Method emphasizes choosing what to keep, not what to toss or reassign a new home. With her enthusiastic blend of demure sweetness and introspective regard, Kondo directs people to hold each item they possess for a few seconds and ask themselves if it “sparks joy.” If yes, they keep the item. If no, they discard it or give it away. For possessions to part with, Kondo recommends letting go with gratitude and thanking each item for what it taught or represented in one’s life.

- Follow the organizing order of clothes, books, papers, miscellaneous items and sentimental items. When progressing from easy tasks to more difficult tasks, family members and caregivers will face less resistance from seniors. Kondo teaches that her decluttering techniques help develop an ongoing mindset to remain tidy forever without a need to endure another major purge session.

Health Benefits to Clearing Clutter

Health and wellness experts espouse a number of positive benefits to decluttering a senior’s home, including:

- Reduced fall risks. Items in disarray throughout a home increase the likelihood of your elder tripping and falling and potentially causing serious or even lethal injuries.

- Lowered anxiety. Living in a home with belongings in chaos adds excess sensory stimulation to older adults’ brains that may already feel taxed with managing everyday routines. Not being able to find items easily among jumbled piles adds frustration and stress and makes the senior feel ashamed or embarrassed for not keeping their home tidy. Clearing the clutter frees the elder from the emotional stress of living in a mess.

- Removal of allergens. When a home is packed with extra unused items in spare rooms, the garage and common living areas, these items attract dust, dander and pet hair that can pile up and aggravate allergies.

Recruiting Help with Spring Cleaning and Organizing

If you’re overwhelmed at just the thought of helping your senior loved one toss items and organize their stockpile of possessions and collectibles, I suggest asking for home care assistance to help with the spring-cleaning process and to stay on top of weekly tidying up. There’s no shame in enlisting the help of in-home care professionals, who understand how to walk your older loved one through the sentimental emotions of downsizing and holding on to the items and memories that mean the most.

However you choose to help your elder declutter and gain the health benefits of a mess-free home, Marie Kondo wants everyone to value the things they own and learn to live with less stuff, even the shabby holiday decorations and ancient 12-speed stand mixer — that in itself should spark joy.
